"Nurse","Good evening! My name is Sarah, and I'm a nurse here in the ER. Can I have your name, please?"

"Patient","Hi, I'm John Doe."

"Nurse","Thank you, John. What brings you to the ER tonight?"

"Patient","I've been having severe chest pain for the last hour."

"Nurse","I'm sorry to hear that. On a scale of 1 to 10, how would you rate your pain?"

"Patient","It's about an 8. It feels tight and sometimes radiates to my left arm."

"Nurse","That sounds concerning. Have you experienced any shortness of breath or dizziness?"

"Patient","Yes, I felt a bit lightheaded earlier, but it seems to have passed."

"Nurse","Do you have any medical conditions we should know about, like heart disease or diabetes?"

"Patient","I have high blood pressure, but that's it."

"Nurse","Are you currently taking any medications?"

"Patient","Just a blood pressure medication, Lisinopril."

"Nurse","Have you had any recent stress or unusual physical activity?"

"Patient","I've been under a lot of stress at work lately, but I haven't done anything strenuous."

"Nurse","Thank you for sharing that. I need to check your vital signs and then we can get you into a room for further evaluation."

"Patient","Okay, I just want to make sure I'm okay."

"Nurse","We'll do our best to take care of you, John. Just a few more questions before we proceed."
